Children and the Summer Holidays

What do you do with your children during the summer holidays to keep them engaged in learning? Unfortunately parents, it is down to you! Here are a few ideas:

- Make, and go on, a picnic together.
- Go to a museum with your child.
- Play board games with your child.
- Paint together.

Do odd jobs around the house together.
Learn something neither of you can do together.

You may see the constant here is spending time with your children so that you have quality family time together. Before you know it, the hugs will become less, their interest in you will become less and they will suddenly be moving on to university. Cherish the time you have with them now by being with them – that will keep your children engaged in learning while incidentally giving them the best summer ever.
